Honor: The ability to connect to and receive information from the collective consciousness of the children is truly an honor. It also comes with responsibility especially when “speaking” for those who are non-verbal and/or a consciousness. Like any relationship, you are building a trust and as you honor them, so too will they honor you with the information that they are here to share.

Responsibility: Your responsibility is to share your experience regarding a child or this level of consciousness in a clear manner when asked to. You may want to create sessions and/or Q and A sessions for this purpose.

Intention: Set your intention to be of the highest service to this level of consciousness and the children who hold it. Do not forget you! Energy follows intention. Please be clear about yours! It is also helpful to set the intention that you positively impact this process and all that you witness within it!

emotional, and dimensional bodies offered in previous modules as you see fit. There are various methods for clearing your energy field. The method is not as important as your consistency and your clear intention to maintain your energetic well-being.

Self- Awareness: The more you know yourself as the multidimensional being that you are, the more expansive and grounded your information will be. Your personal inner growth beneficially impacts those that you serve. Know thyself! Heal thyself!

Receiving Information: Everyone is different, so please do not judge yourself against anyone else. Information can come through all of the senses and/or as a knowing. The information you receive will likely change over time and is also based on different focal points. When you are confused about what is being offered, ask for clarification, and if that clarification does not come initially, write the information down somewhere and file it away as “yet to be revealed.” In some cases, the information is not meant for that moment in time and will be revealed when the time is right. (Those have been some of my favorite exchanges.)

Judgment: In clear communication with the children, your opinions do not matter. Your interpretations are just that: interpretations. Please understand that to see something clearly is the gift, and your interpretation of that can muddy the experience. Your judgment of what is received can add detrimental energy to the mix. Please just notice what you notice. It is not good or bad. It is simply information. The more you can be in clarity and out of judgment, the deeper your connection to this level of consciousness can be.
